

Limber to Terminal Transmission Expansion – Segment C – 500/345/138 kV Project PUBLIC OPEN HOUSE MEETINGS

PacifiCorp, which operates as Rocky Mountain Power, is in the process of obtaining permits to build the Limber to Terminal transmission expansion project in Utah. This is part of PacifiCorp's larger Energy Gateway Transmission Expansion Program to reliably serve customers' future energy needs by connecting and optimizing diverse, clean energy sources from across the West.

The project involves building a high-voltage line from the proposed Limber substation near Grantsville, Utah, to the Terminal substation in Salt Lake City, Utah, as shown in the map below. The project will feature approximately 56 miles of new transmission lines, a new substation, upgrades to two existing substations and reconfiguring two existing transmission lines.

The project involves engagement and collaboration with the following land use authorities: Tooele County, Salt Lake County, Grantsville, Salt Lake City, Magna, Lake Point, Erda, and Tooele City. Prior to submitting the permit applications for permits to the jurisdictions requiring permit approvals, PacifiCorp will host four open house meetings in the project area as follows:
